ALAN SULLIVAN NAMED TO UTAH BUSINESS MAGAZINE'S LIST OF UTAH'S 100 MOST INFLUENTIAL PEOPLE

SALT LAKE CITY (February 24, 2011) – Snell & Wilmer is pleased to announce that Alan Sullivan, an administrative partner in the firm's Salt Lake City office, has been listed as one of "Utah's 100 Most Influential People" by Utah Business Magazine.

Sullivan's feature states, "For more than three decades, Alan Sullivan has made an impact as a litigator in the areas of intellectual property, health care, natural resources and securities. He represented the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints in the controversy over the constitutionality of speech limitations on Main Street Plaza, and he represented the University of Utah in a challenge to the constitutionality of the Legislature's prohibition of campus gun regulations. He has also been a long-time litigator on Intermountain Healthcare's behalf. Sullivan is on the board of directors for the Rocky Mountain Innocence Center and previously served as chair of the Utah Constitutional Revision Commission."

The list, which is published every three years, features a select group of individuals that include mayors, business executives, media moguls and others who the magazine says "are responsible for creating the widely held perception that Utah is the most business-friendly state in the nation. The 100 Most Influential People, while leading top companies and heading important government agencies, also have a wider impact beyond their own organizations, nurturing a vibrant and expanding economy." Only two lawyers made this year's list. The other was Utah's attorney general.
