

SNELL & WILMER LAUNCHES WHITE COLLAR DEFENSE, INVESTIGATIONS AND COMPLIANCE BLOG

LAS VEGAS (December 19, 2013) – Snell & Wilmer is pleased to announce the launch of its White Collar Defense, Investigations and Compliance Blog, offering insight on current news and issues, analysis of recent court decisions, and discussion of noteworthy trends involving federal and state government criminal and regulatory enforcement actions and compliance issues.

Launched by a former U.S. Attorney for the District of Nevada and an Assistant U.S. Attorney for the District of Nevada, Snell & Wilmer attorneys Greg Brower and Craig Denney, respectively, have more than 40 years of combined experience in litigating complex federal criminal and civil cases. Beyond their litigation practice, they also counsel clients on compliance, regulatory, and ethics issues.

“In the increasingly complex world of internal investigations and corporate compliance, it’s more important than ever for in-house counsel to keep current on recent trends, best practices and the latest court decisions,” said Brower. “With this blog, we look forward to providing an additional channel of information on these important topics, engaging with our followers and discussing issues that are both relevant and timely.”

Brower and Denney practice in the firm’s White Collar Defense and Investigations Group where they are joined by more than a dozen experienced professionals in each of the firm’s eight offices throughout the western United States. In addition to his service as U.S. Attorney in Nevada, Brower also previously served at U.S. Department of Justice headquarters in Washington, D. C., and as an Inspector General and General Counsel in the federal government. Denney’s prior service as an Assistant U.S. Attorney in Nevada spanned seven years during which he successfully tried dozens of cases. He is also a Colonel in the U.S. Army Reserve, currently serving as a judge.

“We envision our blog serving as a resource for in-house counsel, business executives and compliance officers and anyone who may become or may have recently become a witness or a target in a government investigation,” said Denney. “Whether a client is facing a grand jury subpoena, a search warrant, a criminal indictment or an investigator is knocking at the company’s door, Snell & Wilmer can assist clients navigate these most sensitive issues.”

This blog is representative of Snell & Wilmer’s continuing presence in the social media space and is one part of the firm’s overarching strategy of recognizing the increasing demand and importance of social media in connection with the provision of legal services.

The Nevada offices of Snell & Wilmer serve a wide range of clients in the following practice areas: civil and commercial litigation; white collar defense, investigations and compliance, administrative law; real estate transactions; finance; corporate and tax; bankruptcy; government affairs; employment and labor; gaming; and construction law.
