PHOENIX OFFICE OF SNELL & WILMER WELCOMES TWO ATTORNEYS

PHOENIX (April 27, 2015) – Snell & Wilmer is pleased to announce the addition of two attorneys to the Phoenix office. Janine Rickman has joined the intellectual property group and Jennifer Stevens has joined the commercial litigation group.

Before joining Snell & Wilmer, Stevens was an associate at Roshka, DeWulf & Patten for over four years, practicing in the areas of commercial and securities litigation. Prior to that, she was an associate at Jones, Skelton & Hochuli, practicing in the areas of appeals and municipal liability. Stevens also clerked for the Hon. Patricia Orozco at the Arizona Court of Appeals after graduating from the University of Arizona College of Law, where she received her J.D. She earned her undergraduate degree from Trinity University and is licensed to practice law in Arizona and Texas.

Rickman is licensed to practice in the U.S. Patent and Trademark Office, in California and Arizona. Before joining Snell & Wilmer, Rickman practiced law in Los Angeles. Her practice has been in intellectual property law, primarily patent and trademark law. Rickman earned her J.D. from Loyola Law School in Los Angeles. She also obtained a B.S. from the University of California, Davis after transferring from the University of Michigan.
