PHOENIX PARTNER BRETT W. JOHNSON JOINS NOTMYKID BOARD OF DIRECTORS

PHOENIX (January 25, 2017) – Snell & Wilmer is pleased to announce that Phoenix partner Brett W. Johnson has joined the board of directors for notMYkid, a non-profit dedicated to inspiring positive life choices for youth by providing prevention education and leadership workshops.

“Brett is not only a pillar of Arizona’s legal community, he is a pillar of our state—we are delighted to have him join our team at notMYkid as we look forward to another year of amazing growth and success,” said notMYkid board chairman Seth Leibsohn.

Founded in 2000, notMYkid is a Scottsdale-based non-profit dedicated to inspiring positive life choices by educating individuals and communities about behavioral health topics such as substance abuse, body image, unhealthy relationships, bullying, depression/self-injury/suicide and Internet safety. notMYkid has recently partnered with Workshops for Youth & Families to integrate the 39-year old program that fosters personal leadership and resiliency in youth and families. In an effort to promote prevention messages, notMYkid increases awareness of the challenges kids face, provides information and offers resources to support the success of students, families and educators.

Brett W. Johnson

At Snell & Wilmer, Johnson represents businesses and individuals in government relations matters.
