SNELL & WILMER LAUNCHES BLOCKCHAIN AND DIGITAL CURRENCY PRACTICE GROUP AND BLOG

PHOENIX (February 28, 2018) – Snell & Wilmer is pleased to announce the launch of its blockchain technology and digital currency practice group and blog to formalize the work that many attorneys have been handling over the years in the blockchain technology and digital currency spectrum.

Blockchain technology and digital currencies offer a myriad of opportunities and challenges to businesses across industries, from financial services to healthcare to supply chain management, as well as potential government services, including public registries, voting and digital identities. As this loosely regulated new currency paradigm takes shape, Snell & Wilmer has brought together a team of attorneys with a strong understanding of the related entities and technologies and the complex regulatory and legal landscape surrounding them.

Snell & Wilmer's interdisciplinary team, which combines attorneys in our corporate and securities; commercial, regulatory, financial services and other blockchain related litigation; government relations; intellectual property; privacy and cybersecurity; tax and other legal content areas, is uniquely positioned to provide strategic guidance to clients who are working with blockchain solutions.

In addition, the group has launched a blog, The Blockchain Law Blog, which will be a resource for businesses looking to fund, develop, protect, and commercialize blockchain technology, as well as those looking to stay up-to-date on the complex regulatory and legal landscape surrounding it.
