Ellie Lockwood

"I am honored to receive this recognition from Law Week Colorado," said Lockwood. "It is great to see the work of women attorneys in our community highlighted."

Lockwood leads the Denver commercial litigation practice group. Her practice is concentrated in litigation and appeals in both federal and state courts in a wide range of matters, often involving contract, business torts, fraud, antitrust, RICO, consumer protection, deceptive trade practices and trustee/fiduciary claims. Lockwood also has substantial experience with seeking or opposing injunctive relief, fraudulent transfers and contempt proceedings. She has been selected to the Colorado Super Lawyers Rising Stars list for six consecutive years for her litigation work and has received multiple awards for her pro bono efforts in the community.

Lockwood was part of the pro bono Jail Wait Litigation Team, which represented Disability Law Colorado in the decadelong federal civil rights litigation seeking to reform the treatment of mentally ill individuals in the criminal court system. In 2019, the parties signed a landmark consent decree that includes sweeping reforms to ensure timely evaluation and treatment of persons who suffer from mental illness as well as provisions to build a community-based mental health system to reduce the criminalization of the mentally ill. The Colorado Lawyers Committee recognized the Jail Wait Litigation Team as the 2019 Team of the Year.
