NEW SAN DIEGO OFFICE TO LAUNCH SNELL & WILMER'S FIRST PODCAST, CALCURRENT

SAN DIEGO (July 2, 2020) – Snell & Wilmer is pleased to announce the launch of its first podcast, CalCurrent, a go-to resource for the latest legal updates impacting California and beyond.

With the COVID-19 crisis making shelter-at-home and social distancing the new normal, Snell & Wilmer's San Diego office has focused on reaching out to the community using new technology streams. With that focus and the goal of providing consistent and current information, the firm's first weekly podcast was formed, CalCurrent.

"During this unprecedented time, virtual connection has become more important than ever before," said San Diego Partner, Jeff Morton, Ph.D. "We are excited to launch this new way to connect with our clients and community and look forward to being a continuing resource for legal updates."

CalCurrent will provide individuals and businesses with information to help navigate the current California legal landscape. The podcast will cover a wide range of issues, including statewide, national and international, that affect those in these communities. CalCurrent's featured speakers will be experienced attorneys who provide succinct updates on current legal matters, accessible as listener's schedules permit.

CalCurrent's topic list for upcoming episodes includes: Virtual Estate Planning in Uncertain Times, an episode by San Diego Partner, Steffi Hafen; Managing Patent Portfolios During Challenging Financial Times, an episode by San Diego Partner, Jeff Morton, and Employer Considerations for Facial Coverings and Masks, an episode by Kevin Brown, an associate in San Diego's Employment and OSHA group.

Episode 1 and Episode 2 are now available to listen to. New episodes will be released every Thursday.
