SNELL & WILMER WELCOMES JOANN THACH AS NEW DIRECTOR OF DIVERSITY, INCLUSION & COMMUNITY OUTREACH

PHOENIX (September 8, 2020) – Snell & Wilmer is pleased to announce that Joann Thach has joined the firm as its new Director of Diversity, Inclusion and Community Outreach. In this role, Thach will oversee the firm’s commitment to expanding and supporting diversity, fostering an inclusive culture and supporting initiatives that positively impact the greater community. This includes working with the firm’s Women’s Initiative Committee and its efforts to retain and promote female attorneys.

“We look forward to the leadership of Joann Thach as our new Director of Diversity and Inclusion. Joann has the skills and experience to energize an organization around the goals of increased diversity and inclusion. We are excited to have her on our team,” said Barb Dawson, a partner at Snell & Wilmer and member of the firm’s Executive Committee.

Joann Thach

Thach has a long history and passion in advocating for justice, equity and inclusion. Prior to joining Snell & Wilmer, she spent a number of years leading recruiting, training and corporate social responsibility efforts with a lens for diversity and inclusion at an AmLaw 100 firm. Thach spent the early years of her career expanding access to colleges and legal services within low-income communities.

“I am thrilled to join Snell & Wilmer in this capacity to help create a community of belonging where people feel welcomed, heard and valued,” Thach said.

She received her undergraduate degree at UCLA in sociology and philosophy and recently completed an intensive Critical Race Theory & Intersectionality summer school program sponsored by the African American Policy Forum, in partnership with Columbia Law School and UCLA School of Law.
