SNELL & WILMER LAUNCHES THE DELAWARE COURT OF CHANCERY, DELAWARE SUPREME COURT AND DELAWARE BANKRUPTCY BLOG

LAS VEGAS (January 25, 2021) – Snell & Wilmer is pleased to announce the launch of its Delaware Court of Chancery, Delaware Supreme Court and Delaware Bankruptcy Blog to provide insight regarding the courts that adjudicate cases for the more than one million national and international companies that call Delaware home.

The blog hopes to provide timely, thoughtful, and practical commentary by Snell & Wilmer attorneys on notable decisions from the Delaware Court of Chancery, Delaware Supreme Court, and Delaware Bankruptcy Court.

The blog will be edited by Partner John Delikanakis and Associate Gil Kahn.

“From start-ups to Fortune 500 companies, Delaware remains at the top of the list for its number of corporate formations and company headquarters,” said Delikanakis. “The history of the courts alone provides for a more predictable environment for settling business and corporate disputes. Our goal of the blog is to provide timely updates on key cases and issues that we believe will be of interest to the larger business community.”

To sign up to receive blog updates, scroll to the bottom of the blog page and enter your first and last name and email address. Then, press “subscribe.”

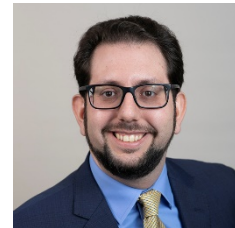

This blog is representative of Snell & Wilmer’s continuing presence in the social media space and is one part of the firm’s overarching strategy of recognizing the increasing demand and importance of social media in connection with legal services.
