DAVID EDELBLUTE TO CO-AUTHOR REPORT ON REMOTE LEARNING AND EQUITY IN EDUCATION

LAS VEGAS (November 9, 2021) – Snell & Wilmer is pleased to announce that David Edelblute, an attorney in the firm’s Las Vegas office, co-authored a Report on Remote Learning and Equity in Education as a member of the Nevada Advisory Committee to the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

On November 3, 2021, the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights released a report following a series of web hearings to understand the impact of remote learning and equity in education, especially among students in K-12 schools with disabilities and students of color, during the COVID-19 pandemic. The full release can be viewed here.

“Education is the civil rights issue of our time,” said Edelblute. “To be a small part of potential solutions to Nevada’s education issues is extremely gratifying, but the majority of the credit for this work should go to the education leaders who provided unrivaled testimony during our hearing process, our dedicated and experienced leadership on the Nevada Advisory Committee, and the highly professional staff at the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.”

The Nevada Advisory Committee is one of 51 State Advisory Committees \(SACs\), one for each state and the District of Columbia. Each is composed of citizen volunteers familiar with local and state civil rights issues. The members assist the Commission with its fact-finding, investigative, and information dissemination functions, according to its website. The Commission seeks to ensure that advisory committees are broadly diverse and represent a variety of backgrounds, skills, experiences, and perspectives. This diversity promotes vigorous debate and full exploration of the issues. All appointments are made in a non-discriminatory manner.

Edelblute is an associate focusing on commercial litigation and government affairs. He represents a broad range of clients in business matters, provides his clients advice on local, state, and national legislation, and guides his clients through complex regulatory and administrative matters. He received his J.D. from the University of Wisconsin Law School and his B.A. from Arizona State University.
