Ashley Repka focuses her practice in Commercial Litigation. Ashley has assisted in the representation of a variety of clients across multiple industries, in cases involving breach of contract, business and other torts, securities regulation, and intellectual property disputes. She regularly analyzes and briefs complex legal issues and utilizes her research and analysis to draft demand letters, complaints, answers, discovery requests and responses, and pretrial motions. Additionally, Ashley continues to develop the firm's practice in Investigations, Government Enforcement and White Collar Protection, and Cybersecurity, Data Protection and Privacy. Ashley also maintains a consistent pro bono practice. She has represented individuals in contract disputes, HOA assessment disputes, and the dispute of mechanics' or materialmen's liens, and regularly represents a local nonprofit organization in forcible entry and detainer proceedings before the Justice Court. Before joining Snell & Wilmer, Ashley was a judicial law clerk to the Honorable Samuel A. Thumma, then-Chief Judge of the Arizona Court of Appeals.
